THE GHOST BADLY WOUNDED

One of Its Victims Happened to Have a Revolver and Knew How to Shoot.

Herman Kepler's Disastrous Effort to Frighten His Friends—Wound that Came Very Near Being Fatal.

A ghost was wounded near the City Hospital at an early hour Sunday morning, and ran to the hospital to have its wound dressed. Herman Kepler, a young man residing near the hospital, tried to frighten some friends by masquerading before them as a ghost. He had secured the latest approved ghost costume, and in the small hours of the morning, when a person's nerves are supposed to be very flighty, he sallied forth. His friends were fishing on the banks of Fall creek, near the hospital, and he stole upon them without being observed till quite close to the spot where they were trying to persuade most any sort of a fish to fasten itself upon their hooks. When his friends finally saw the ghost they did not display the alarm that they should have done to make a successful ghost story. Instead, one of them, who happened to have a revolver in his pocket, drew it out and fired at the ghost just as if it was not some terrible being from the other world. There was a cry of pain from the ghost and it turned, and fled from the scene. It directed its steps toward the City Hospital and never stopped till it reached that place, all out of breath and nearly ready to drop. It had very much the appearance of a ghost when it reached the hospital; all the color had left its face, and it looked as if it would be a ghost in a very few minutes if it had not been when it first sallied forth upon the banks of Fall creek.

It told Dr. Ferguson, between gasps, that it was shot, and wanted him to dress its life if it could. When the doctor made his examination he found that the ball had entered on the left side just over the heart, which organ it would have pierced had it not struck a rib and been deflected. The wound, as it was, was not serious, being merely a flesh wound. The ball had extended quite a distance and had buried under the skin. It was cut out, and the ghost, who proved to be Kepler, became very much mortified.

BURIED A HATCHET IN HIS HEAD.

Charles Coley Badly Wounded in a Fight in a Room Where He Was an Intruder.

Fred Hyatt, of No. 15 North New Jersey street, is in the station house, and claims that he was wrongfully arrested. In the adjoining cell to Hyatt is Charles Coley, who is of the opinion that he ought to be occupying a bunk at the City Hospital instead of an iron cell. Both men were arrested yesterday by Sergeants Barlow and Kurtz, and charged with assault and battery. Coley was brought in covered with blood, and looking like he had cut his throat, though the blood flowed from a ghastly wound on the side of his head. Hyatt tells this story:

Yesterday afternoon he left his room open and went out to take a bath, returning in an hour to find the premises in charge of Coley, who was laboring under the influence of a number of cheap cocktails. Hyatt ordered Coley to vacate at once, but the former only shook his head like a mad bull and coolly confiscated a seat in the coolest corner of the room. Hyatt is a peaceable citizen, and in order to allow his wrath to boil down picked up a paper and began to read. This incensed the visitor, who did not propose to be ignored and he boldly arose, walked over to Hyatt and struck him a blow in the face. At this every spark of peace confined in the heart of Hyatt fled and he looked about for a weapon. A hatchet lay near at hand and served the purpose. He buried the instrument in the head of his enemy and then called the police. Dr. Durham dressed Coley's wounds, which were very serious and painful.

Fell from a Wagon.
Thomas Taylor fell from a wagon near the City Hospital, yesterday, and broke his arm. He was taken to the hospital, where the arm was set and he is now in his home, No. 419 South Tennessee street.

TICKET IS WELL RECEIVED

Republicans Everywhere Pleased with the Work of the City Convention.

Congratulations Showed Upon Mr. Denny—Mr. Fairbank's Telegram—Nixon's Popularity.

Saturday night's convention was the principal topic of conversation at the clubs, the hotels and on the streets yesterday, not only among Republicans but among those of the opposite political faith. The nominations were well received, and Republicans will go into the fight united and in good trim. Evidence of the struggle before the convention for the nomination for Mayor had all disappeared, and yesterday the supporters of the other men whose names had been placed before the convention were as enthusiastic Denny men as were the ones who had yelled themselves hoarse for him the night before. They opposed to him at the club and because their sympathies or pledges had been given to another, but now that the convention has declared its choice they are out to work for him, and with the belief that that work will not be for naught. Yesterday found men discussing politics who before have shown but little interest in municipal affairs. Business men, and men of affairs who have felt the weight of the present administration in no little degree, and who believe that it has not been wisely administered are among them, and they will work for the success of the Republican party. Men who were prominent in politics at the time Mr. Denny was Mayor four years ago, but who have dropped out of sight in the face of repeated Democratic successes, are again to the front and they have the faith to believe that their leader will not be defeated now any more than he was at that time.

Thinking men feel that the Republican administration before the charter went into effect cannot be compared with the one that has followed it. They believe that it has, and they believe that Republicanism administered in the same spirit with the charter as it was without it will excel all efforts of the Democracy. They believe in the unanimity of feeling and enthusiasm, and if it does not wallop the faction-torn and ring Democracy then many men are worthless prophets.

Mr. Denny Warmly Congratulated.
Nominée Caleb S. Denny received many callers at his house, yesterday. He came to offer their congratulations. They came singly, and in pairs, and in groups, and all extend to him their belief in his ability to carry the party victorious to the polls. Among them were many men who have not before taken an interest in municipal politics, but who are now thoroughly aroused and thoroughly prepared to work. They told Mr. Denny in so many words that they were ready to help him at all points and in any way that he might suggest. A telegram from the Hon. C. W. Fairbanks, who is at Pittsburg, was received by Mr. Denny yesterday. It was as follows:

Hon. Caleb S. Denny: Accept my heartiest congratulations. I believe you will be elected if every one does his duty. C. W. FAIRBANKS.

Many similar messages were received, and no candidate ever went into a political struggle with heartier encouragement.

Nixon's Popularity.
Lee Nixon, the candidate for city clerk, yesterday went to his old home at Nashville to carry the news of his success to his family. His brother is the county recorder of Rush county. Mr. Nixon is looked upon as an unusually strong man. He is a member of Typographical Union No. 1 and has been honored by it by being made its delegate to the international convention. He is recognized as a reliable and faithful worker and a man whose popularity will increase as he becomes better known. He has already received assurances from many of the Democratic friends of their support, and is confident that they mean what they say.

TRIED TO POISON HIMSELF.

Christopher Bowlin, Late of Tipton, Tired of Life—Gave His Reasons in a Note.

Christopher Bowlin, the proprietor of a restaurant at No. 19 Clifford avenue, took a heavy dose of morphine Sunday night and went to sleep. His recovery is doubtful. The drug swallowed by Bowlin was intended to end his existence was evident from the note left on his table addressed "To whom it may concern and the public generally."

Bowlin was nearly sixty years of age and fairly well-to-do. His wife and family reside at Tipton, from where he came three weeks ago to engage in the restaurant business. He occupied a room in the Coffee Block, and slept over his store. The enterprise has not been successful and financial affairs, coupled with domestic trouble, it is thought, impelled him to make the rash attempt on his life. He retired about 11 o'clock Saturday night, and about a word to his employees about his contemplated act, and until 6 o'clock yesterday morning nothing was heard of him. At that hour the storekeepers breaking down the door from his room warned the occupants of the block that something was amiss. The door was broken open and Bowlin found unconscious and apparently dead. Dr. Tinsley and Ryan were summoned and administered restoratives, but up to a late hour last night Bowlin had not revived enough to speak.

On a table at his bedside lay several morphine capsules and a sheet of paper upon which the victim had written his last words. He stated that he had taken a sufficient quantity of morphine to take him out of "this vale of tears," and that his life had been so full of mistakes that he did not care to live longer. He also requested that no inquest be held over his remains.

The employees of the restaurant say that Bowlin received a letter from his family at Tipton some time ago which seemed to affect his spirits considerably. He had also remarked to some of his friends that his family affairs were not running smoothly. He was possessed of some fifteen thousand dollars' worth of property, which was in his wife's name. His son C. H. Bowlin arrived from Tipton last night and is attending his father.

NEW SCHUTZEN PARK.

Prizes for the First Contest Awarded at the Social Opening Yesterday.

Six hundred people gathered at the Schutzen Park yesterday afternoon to witness the closing of the three days' shoot given by the new German association at their grounds on Vorster avenue, west of White river. Those who participated in the target shooting yesterday were Messrs. Ed. Bretz, A. Woerner, George Knarzer, Fred Klein, Ed. Eckels, R. Miller, J. Culmann, Frank Beaprez, J. Cabalzer, J. L. Bieler, August Hook, and Fred Metz.

Silver cup prizes were awarded Messrs. Ed. Bretz, A. Woerner and George Knarzer. The winners scored the following points: Bretz, 209; Woerner, 211; Knarzer, 160. After the result of the shoot had been announced, Captain Bieler, in behalf of the shooting association, handed the privileges of the park over to the club president, Phil Zapf, who responded happily. The park is pleasantly situated and, it is said, boasts of the finest range in the country.

A Good Time to Build.

"In the years I have been in business I do not remember to have seen a more opportune time to erect buildings than right now," said a contractor on Saturday. "I was offered the best of brick last week on cars at Marion, f. o. b., at $5 per thousand, and at Anderson at $1.75 per thousand, and in our own market they are $1 to $1.50 lower than four months ago, and $3 lower than a year ago. Contracts for stone work can now be made at 15 per cent. less cost than in the early spring, and when one comes to the lumber and carpenter work there is such anxiety to get work that the most reasonable terms can be secured." He then cited several cases where buildings had been erected under contracts made within the last four months which could now be contracted at 15 to 30 per cent. less cost. One case was mentioned where the contractor gets $20,000 in round numbers for erecting the several buildings, and there were a dozen contractors who would be glad to contract under the same conditions at $5,000, and another case where $20,000 was the contract price, the same buildings could now be contracted for readily at $25,000.

SEE TOOK LAUDANUM.

Unsuccessful Effort at Suicide by Rena Ball, a Colored Domestic.

Rena Ball, a colored girl twenty-four years of age, employed as a domestic at the home of Mrs. Dora McCarthy, No. 307 North Mississippi street, attempted suicide at No. 24 Willard street, yesterday, by taking Laudanum. Dr. C. O. Durham was called in and administered an emetic and the girl was revived and will recover.

The cause of the attempt is not known. The girl says that she was away from home and out of money and did not want to go back to her mother. Her home is in St. Louis, and she has only been in this city about six weeks. The true cause for her attempt to kill herself is supposed to be a quarrel with her lover, Joe Wallace, with whom she came to this city. They quarreled Saturday night, and he left her, and it is supposed she did not want to live if she hadn't Joe.

BETHANY'S CAMP MEETING

Preparations for the Twelfth Annual Gathering of Christian People.

Some of the More Notable Cottages in the Park—Camp Opens Aug. 15—Assembly's Officers.

The twelfth annual Bethany Assembly camp meeting will commence on July 27th and close on Aug. 15th.

Bethany Park is admirably adapted to the use to which it has been consecrated. Here the members of the Christian Church meet yearly for the purpose of worship and association with their coworkers.

The attendance at the encampment is by no means confined to the churches of Indiana. For several years the attendance has been from many States. Last year more than twenty States were represented.

The park is situated on the Indianapolis & Vincennes railroad, twenty miles southwest of Indianapolis. It includes about forty acres of hilly land, well shaded and provided with an excellent supply of water-work. There is also a very pretty lake of clear water, supplied with boating and bathing accommodations. The principal buildings on the ground are the hotel, which is situated on a gentle slope on the side of the lake and is conveniently arranged, with a capacity of a large number of guests. The assembly hall, a handsome building, where the persons attending the meeting can find pleasant and comfortable accommodations.

Among the private cottages are those of Messrs. A. M. Wabash, of Wabash, Judge W. M. Franklin, of Spencer; Mr. Henry Hodges, of Paragon; Mr. Scott, of Alexandria; Mrs. Judge Cumming, of Bloomington; and the New Castle Ladies' Aid Society. The Tabernacle is a large, airy building, comfortably seating more than two thousand people. The C. W. B. building, where the Christian Science church is held, is a fine building, and the grounds which is as ornamental as it is useful; it contains an auditorium room twenty-seven feet square on the first floor and a number of rooms for lodging purposes on the second floor, and is surrounded on all sides by a broad veranda.

The Standard Publishing Company's cottage is well located and attractive in appearance. A full supply of all the publications of the Christian Church, together with a school and Y. P. S. C. E. supplies are kept here.

The Christian Publishing Company also has a building where are sold books, stationery, and other necessities.

Butler University owns a cottage, situated on the crest of a hill, which serves as a rendezvous for Butler students. The cottage is a beautiful building, with a large hall and a library. It is surrounded by a large lawn and is a very attractive place.

Besides these permanent buildings there is always a great number of tents pitched in every available place, space for tents and for the free charges of Friday, July 28, is Children's day, and arrangements have been made to entertain large crowds of little folks.

The officers of the assembly are L. L. Carpenter, Wabash, Ind., president; Simon Frazier, Irvington, secretary; J. H. Henry, Indianapolis, treasurer. An interesting program of lectures, sermons and talks by prominent churchmen from all parts of the country. The music for the entire time will be under the direction of W. M. Hackelmeier. It is expected that under his management the music and singing will add greatly to the interest of the encampment.

Even to persons uninterested in the encampment lectures and conventions, Bethany Park is a delightfully cool and pleasant place to spend a few days during the summer. The grounds are abundant shade trees, with the additional interest of the constant coming and going of people, making it a charming camp ground.

Beginning with July 27, daily trains will leave Indianapolis at 8 A. M., 11:15 A. M., and 2 P. M., arriving at the park at 8:30 and 12:30 A. M. and at 3:30 P. M.

WHY FRUITS ARE HIGH.

Where the World's Fair Hurts Indianapolis—Growers of Vegetables Foeled.

For three months past Indianapolis has had to pay higher prices and content itself with poorer vegetables and fruits than in any year for a decade. This is due to a belief which prevailed among those who raise early fruits and vegetables that Chicago would be the best market in the West.

Chicago has been the first to get early potatoes, cabbage and fruits of all kinds, and often when the Chicago market has been overstocked there has been a dearth at Indianapolis. Within the last three weeks prices of early vegetables and fruits at Indianapolis got the idea that they could get better prices at Chicago and shipped a large lot of currants there, paid the freight and the average of years past. The currants were selling at $8 per stand here. Equally low prices were received on shipments of raspberries and blackberries, and much of the time when there has been a shortage of small fruits and vegetables here there has been a surplus at Chicago.

This has kept the prices thus far this season above the average of years past. The only thing in the way of fruit this year which sells lower than last year is water-melons.

"Don't think I am complaining," said a commission man in speaking of the subject. "That's not the case. The higher prices are and the closer goods are disposed of the more money the commission man I think there is not a commission man on this row who did not make more money in May and June than in any former year. If he did not it was his own fault. In this connection there is a singular phase. It will be noticed that this market has been overstocked with small fruits. California fruits, Bartlett pears selling as low as $2.50 a bushel. This California fruit is bought at auction in Chicago, which is now overstocked with California fruit, and then shipped here and to other markets."

Daylight Burglary.

The home of T. W. Myers, at No. 41 Helen street, was visited by a burglar yesterday afternoon, who carried away Mrs. Myers's jewelry and other valuables. The burglar entered the house and left without an effort to stop him.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL TALKS

Hon. Alonzo Green Smith's Views on Simeon Coy and the Colorado Rebellion.

Declares the Little Boss to Be a "General Dais" and Wants to Defy Governor White and the Whole World.

The Attorney-general of the State of Indiana was sitting in his office late one of those hot, sultry afternoons of last week, with his feet perched high upon his desk, busily engaged in mopping the perspiration from his forehead and endeavoring to read a newspaper. That newspaper was a copy of the Indianapolis Journal of the morning of the day mentioned. He was interrupted in his perusal by the entrance of a reporter from that paper, and he threw it to one side to enter into a conversation, during the course of which he delivered himself of some very original ideas. He was asked for information which might be of public importance and replied that he did not know of any.

"I am just looking," he said, "but I do wish for the paper which he had thrown down, to see what I can learn from this paper."

The reporter suggested that he was apt to find all there was to be found in it, and the Attorney-general assented with a very original smile.

"Well, that is all right," he said, "but I do wish that the Journal was able to find some issue to talk about. It has the Coy issue, and it doesn't seem to be able to get on anything else but the same old same old asperity. Why don't it leave Coy alone for a little while?"

The reporter again offered a suggestion that certain party organs were trying to read Mr. Coy out of the party, and that he was being attacked pretty generally by the press, no matter where papers were printed. The Attorney-general saw fit to ignore the statement, and continued in the same strain. "Now, you tell me, wouldn't you folks like to get the Coy issue? Wouldn't you like to have him working for you? Wouldn't you like to get all of the votes that he can get? Let's be a daisy generally!"

Well, I guess that you would like to get him but you can't. Oh, I know just how that is, and the Attorney-general relapsed into a broad smile, flinging his hands outward in a manner intended to be convincing.

"I was in Chicago the other day," he said, "when I read about the proclamation issued by the Governor of Colorado in which he said his State would never submit to the repeal of the silver purchase act. Never, no, never! His State would never submit to the repeal of the silver purchase act. He was in blood up to his bridle before they would submit. How I did laugh when I read it. And he laughed again at the remembrance of it. He laughed long and heartily. I thought to myself, if only those utterances had come from Louisiana or Georgia how the Journal would have howled. It would have called on the populace to arm itself, and it would have called on the old veterans to never unspooled powder to come out and suppress the rebellion. How it would have waved the bloody shirt. Hoopiee! Yes, sir, and on that issue it would have attempted to sweep the election in this city. I want to tell you that that proclamation was wasted on desert air and blown in vain. It ought to have come from George."

Here the Attorney-general relapsed into another hearty fit of laughter, and resumed, smiling.

"I would like to make a political speech on that subject. I would stand out here on the brow of the Kearsarge that Tim Griffin is building, and I would call all of the people around to hear me. I would say that proposed to put down that rebellious State out there in the mountains which has dared to say that it will not comply with the laws of the land. I would demand that the Governor of that State should tell me the size of the horse the bridle and waving the other I would call on Georgia, and Alabama, and Louisiana to help me. Yes, and by thunder, I would call on Simeon Coy, and together we would ride the world, and put down that rebellious State. Oh, I tell you that the Journal has missed the opportunity of it."

The foregoing speech had been illustrated with gestures which are the Attorney-general's own, and when he had finished he looked proudly around him and when he had in fact done what he had talked about. The reporter had gone, and there was left but the office stenographer, and Joe Fanning, who slipped in. To them was left the applause.

OLNEY CLUB BEATEN.

It Started Out Well, but Fell Down After the Fifth Inning.

Indianapolis and Olney (Ill.) clubs played an interesting game for five innings, at Lanham's Park, yesterday. After the fifth inning the Olneys failed to catch on. They started out well, getting in four runs by clean, hard drives in the first inning, but in the fifth the home team pounced out six runs and the game by some very clever ball playing.

In the fifth inning, with three men on bases, the Olney pitcher made a balk, and as the umpire would not say he didn't, the entire team attempted to leave the grounds, but after waiting for about fifteen minutes they concluded to finish the game. Barnes made a two-bagger and a home run, and Joe Broderick made a great running catch from right field to back of second. Following is the score:

Indianapolis.....0 0 2 6 0 4 3 1-16
Olney.....4 0 1 0 0 0 0 0-6
Two outs—H. F. Schuler, Burge, Smith, Foreth, O'Mara. Three-base hits—Smith, With, Home runs—Barnes, Boyd. Wild pitches—By Donovan 1. Hit by pitched ball—Watkins. Bases on balls—By Sonora 9, by Donovan 5. Stolen bases—Indianapolis 5, Olney 2. Left on bases—Indianapolis 10, Olney 10. Errors—Foreth 1, Smith 1. Indianapolis 1, Olney 6. Time of game—2:15. Umpire—Dorenus.

FOUGHT OVER A YOUNG MAN.

Disgraceful Fight of Women on Pennsylvania Street Last Night.

Between 10 and 11 o'clock last night the services of the police were badly needed on Pennsylvania street, between Market and Ohio. A blonde haired young woman walked hurriedly into Kershner's restaurant and, planting her feet on a counter on the other side of the street, she asked for a sandwich. Before the clerk could fill the order the customer glanced through the window and her eye taking in the familiar outlines of a well-dressed young fellow with a girl on his arm, she made a dash for the sidewalk.

"Where are you going, George?" inquired the blonde-haired woman, addressing the young man, who fell back somewhat nervously, with an angry wrench.

"Why, I am going to take this lady home," replied George, and started on with his companion.

"Where are you not?" retorted the owner of the blonde hair. She grew white with rage and her fingers began to prepare for a reach into the hair of the other girl. But George continued his course and precipitated a disgraceful brawl, which was witnessed by a half hundred men, not one of whom made an effort to quail the girl who apparently had possession of George and his affections for the time plainly showed fight, and the blonde-haired woman was in for it.

Suddenly the blonde one, dressed in brown, stepped up to the other two, and broke the grasp he had upon the other's arm, with an angry wrench.

"No, sir, George, you shall not go home with her," she exclaimed in a loud and angry voice, and then, turning to the woman, she said: "I want you to go away and let him alone. He is my friend, not yours, and you shall not have him."

The argument was rather warm, the blonde-haired woman said that she guessed she would have him if she wanted him, and the other protesting. Finally the man took hold in and tried to shake off the one in brown, but she clung to him with all her strength. By this time they had walked on and turned down Ohio street, going east. The altercation was kept up, and suddenly the man struck at the one in brown with a parasol he was carrying. She immediately picked up a brick and aimed it at him, and he dodged. A square further on he again struck at her with the parasol, and knocked her hat off. She responded with another brick, which missed him and crashed into the side of one of the houses. She stuck close to his side, and so they went, until they reached every few steps, until they reached Alabama street. There they stopped, and another long argument resulted, in which the two women nearly came to blows. They then went to Washington street, where the woman in brown gave up the contest and went off and left them alone. They were followed the round by quite a large crowd, but were apparently oblivious of it.

Collied with a Pole.
Henry Piscator, of No. 1 Madison avenue, attempted to drop from a Virginia-avenue car at the corner of Meridian and Georgia streets yesterday evening. He chose the wrong side of the car, and collided with a pole, and was thrown to the ground. The police patrol was called and Piscator was sent to the station house, where Dr. Marace examined his injuries. It was found that he was seriously hurt, but he was taken to the hospital for a more thorough examination.
